APEX COLLECTION

Apex is an exploration of light in motion using the centuries-old technique of kiln-formed glass and brass as central characters in an ever-changing narrative.

Layers of gently curved glass are held within a geometric framework of precision-crafted brass. When lit from within, the rippled texture of the glass captures, refracts and diffuses the light: creating a dynamic visual perception that shifts and warps from different viewing angles.

The attention to detail of Apex's frame contrasts with the organic qualities of the glass it holds. Tight radius curves, seamless intersections and crisp, knurled elements combine to elevate the craft behind each piece.

Whether admired from afar or examined more closely, Apex makes a strong case for light being the foundation of visual art.

DESIGN INSIGHTS

The relationship between maker and designer is central to our process. It is a constant dialogue in which materials, craft and intention converge. Every stage of the design process is interconnected, with light considered from the very beginning as both a functional and formative element. Each contour, finish and fixture is thoughtfully refined to create pieces that feel authentic, sophisticated and enduring.
